Maguindanao trial starts: 200 accused and 500 witnesses

By Mike Morales

QUEZON CITY Judge Jocelyn Salas Reyes opens today the trial of the November 2009 Maguindanao massacre, with nearly 200 accused and a lot of over 500 witnesses.

The trial will determine whether Andal Ampatuan Jr., whose clan was closely associated with then President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo, and 199 others carried out the slaughter of 57 unarmed civilians including at least 30 media

Only at MWSS: Even drivers get car loans

Senators learn there's also gender incentive bonus

CANDLES FOR PEACE Executive Secretary Puyopio Ochoa (left), Chinese Ambassador to the Philippines Liu Jianchao and Justice Secretary Lito de Lima light candles after the Mass for Peace and Nonviolence at Quirino Grandstand in Manila, site of the Aug. 23 hostage-taking that left eight Hong Kong tourists dead.

WHERE CAN YOU find a driver who is entitled to a car loan?

Answer: At the Metropolitan Waterworks and Sewerage System (MWSS).

Drivers may seal themselves off from the rest of the MWSS employees.

The Senate committee on Finance found this out yesterday at its hearing on bonuses and allowances in government-owned and -controlled companies (GOCCs).

The exclusive cadre met at the Commission on Audit (COA) disallowed "for lack of legal basis" 33 types of bonuses amounting to a total of P156 million out of the P242 million in MWSS bonuses in 2009. Assistant Audit Commissioner Jaime Naraspe told the senators.

But MWSS officials led by officer in charge Maria Cruz said they would appeal the COA findings because they could justify the bonuses.

"I think no matter how unreasonable it, I don't think it is proper that you have 33 types of bonuses to fantastic amounts and yet, because the COA has disapproved (them), you will

AMED A "no whitewash, no scapegoat" call by a Catholic bishop, President Aquino yesterday vowed he would come up with an "unassailable report" on last week's botched po-

Mr. Aquino said "corrective actions" would be taken within the week in the aftermath of the Aug. 23 hostage drama before international terrorism comes to the killed eight Hong Kong tourists and their captors, said the Senator. He said the Commission on Audit (COA) has disallowed "for lack of legal basis" 33 types of bonuses amounting to a total of P156 million out of the P242 million in MWSS bonuses in 2009. Assistant Audit Commissioner Jaime Naraspe told the senators.

DENGUE-CARRIING mosquitoes have scourged regions nationwide and more than 50,000 Filipinos in hospitals since January.

The Department of Health (DOH) has recorded a total of 54,659 cases in the past eight months until Aug. 31—a 75-percent spike in figures reported for the same period in 2009.

Dr. Isabella Olivero, DOH head nurse, admitted, yesterday said a clustering of dengue cases had been detected nationwide. "Last year, there was clustering of dengue cases only in certain provinces. But now, clustering is in every region," Olivero told the Inquirer by phone.

At least 429 deaths have been confirmed across the country, with Eastern Visayas registering the highest figure at 79, marking a 53-percent increase from 2009 figures.

DOH records as of Aug. 14 showed that most of the dengue cases were from Western Visayas with 7,690; Socorro, 6,470; Calabarzon, 5,200;

Palace getting soft on Ombudsman's impeachment, say party-list reps

A CALL FOR VIGILANCE ON POWER RATES

We must participate in governance. And the way to do this is to be vigilant:

1. We call on everyone to compare and report monthly electricity consumption for the last 3 months as billed by your distribution utilities (Meralco, VECO, Davao Light, PECO, SFELAPCO, Angeles Electric, DECORP, Tarlac Electric, CEPALCO, Subic Enerzone, Clark Electric, etc.).
2. We will compile all reports we receive and submit these to the Department of Energy.

Based on our simulation of Meralco's rates for the billing month of August, your bill amount should be as follows:

Consumption in kWh	Bill Amount in Php	Consumption in kWh	Bill Amount in Php
20	4.66	500	6,239.50
50	281.05	550	6,860.53
70	506.77	600	7,481.56
100	884.14	650	8,102.59
150	1,685.19	700	8,723.62
200	2,210.52	750	9,344.65
250	2,881.40	800	9,965.68

MILITANT party-list members working to impeach Ombudsman Mercedes Gutierrez claim that they are not getting support from President Aquino who they say may have softened on the issue of Gutierrez.

"We're looking for more votes... our slogan from both Malacanang and the House, for Aquino and all the party-list members, is 'No Gutierrez!'"

The report comes from a group of party-list members, including those from House Members, Gutierrez, Gutierrez and ACT (Aquino, Tiberio, and Gutierrez), who are preparing for the party-list election in the coming months.

The group said that Gutierrez should not be allowed to continue to work for the Aquino family as it is a conflict of interest.

Noyon cancels trip to Vietnam, Indonesia

By Christine D. Mendoza

PRESIDENT Aquino has cancelled his trip to Vietnam and Indonesia this week but will go south with his wife in the United States on Sept. 23.

"The reason will be Aquino," the President said in a report, in relation to the 2008 election. He said he was not going to the United States on Sept. 23.

He explained that Aquino would not go to Vietnam during the month of September because of the 2008 election. He said he was not going to the United States on Sept. 23.

Retailers hike LPG prices again

By Amy B. Ramos

LIQUIDATED PETROLEUM gas retailers have raised prices of cooking gas by 10 per kilogram effective yesterday.

This means that the price of an 11 kg LPG cylinder, which is used by most households, is expected to increase to P33, according to LPG Marketers Association (LPGMA) president Daniel Ty.

In a phone interview, Ty explained that the latest price hike can be attributed to the $55 per metric ton increase in the international market price. This brings the contract price for LPG to $653 per MBT in September, up from last month's price of $597 per MBT.

It added that an LPG tank from LPGMA member companies would now cost at least P517 after the latest price increase, which brings the domestic LPG price over the past several months.

LPGMA member companies, which supply LPG products to an estimated 30 percent of the Luzon market, carry stockpiles with an Abundant Gas, Regency Gas, Pioneer Gas, Car Gas, M. Gas, Omni Gas and Pacific Gas.

Ty added that this was likely the only LPG price increase that they will implement this month.

NO MORE SHAVING OR WAXING, LASERLIGHT IS A REAL TIME-SAVER!

Of course I would always like to look flawless, who wouldn't? I used to shave and wax to achieve just that. But those methods always felt short. Shaving was time-consuming, and really painful to do. And waxing made the hair grow back thicker and harder. But now that I've done LaserLight Hair Removal, I won't have to go through the hassles of shaving and waxing anymore! No more stubble and chicken skin, no more hiding. All you do is invest a little time, but the rewards you'll get - smooth and hair-free skin - last for a lifetime! I couldn't be happier!

REDUNDANT AGENCIES

Noynoy scraps PASG, PAGC with zero budget

By Christian D. Asensio

TWO PROPOSED government agencies to be created by the Arroyo administration have been effectively discontinued by the present dispensation without much trouble.

The administration of President Aquino has simply refused to allocate funds for the proposed Anti-Fraud Agency (PAGC) and the Presidential Anti-Hack Commission (PAGC) in the proposed 2011 national budget.

"The PAGC and PAGC will have zero budget," said a Presidential Communications Group (PCG) Secretary Ricky Gonzales told the reporter in a phone interview.

Redundant

The two agencies—created by former President Gloria Macapagal-Arroyo—were almost redundant even during the latter's term which ended on June 30 this year.

The PAGC's functions were said to overlap with that of the Bureau of Customs, while the PAGC was said to be doing the same work as the Office of the Ombudsman.

President Aquino in his first month in office said he was considering abolishing the two agencies that fell under the Office of the President.

Macapagal-Arroyo created the PAGC on April 16, 2001, to investigate ruling government officials, a function constitutionally vested in the Office of the Ombudsman.

In May 2007, she issued Executive Order 164 creating the PAGC to get other agencies to do what was the Bureau of Customs' domain.

The PAGC quickly drew criticism for getting entangled in controversies involving its operations and the conduct of its chief (as presented). A Manila newspaper trial court victory this year ordered its abolition.

Washed budget

Metacash also cut appropriations in the national budget for government-owned and -controlled corporations (GOCCs) that are performing poorly even as their executives and employees enjoy hefty compensation packages.

The budget of under-performing GOCCs have been slashed," Gonzales said. He wouldn't say which GOCCs would suffer reductions but a leading paper on the budget prepared by Metacash said that, among others, the National Food Authority and Light Rail Transit Administration were the subject of "GOCC reduction."

The closures—prepared by the Presidential Commission on Development and Strategic Planning Office under Vice President Arroyo and the Department of Budget and Management—indicated that while some agencies would be dismantled, others would be expanded.

"The proposed 2011 budget reflects (the need for) fiscal responsibility... (and) addresses the needs of the people," Gonzales said in a news briefing also on Monday.

He said the P1.649-billion budget represented a modest increase of 5.8 percent over the 2009 budget of P1.51 billion. Metacash is hoping to meet the budget bill late in the month of January next year.

Palace honors top teachers, but not cops

By Christian D. Asensio

MALACANANG was supposed to honor yesterday the country's top policemen and teachers but ended up only recognizing the teachers.

Metacash Foundation Inc., quickly altered the deliveries of the granting of the top 18 outstanding policemen in service held to do with the Aug. 23 honor event which demands full Government attention to the police.

In simple terms, President Aquino honored 18 outstanding policemen who were members of the Metacash Foundation for Outstanding Teachers.

Referring to the awarding of the Metacash Foundation Inc., chief George S.R. Jr. Education Secretary Armin Llapas and Commission on Higher Education Dr. Patricia Llaneta, among others.

When reporters asked President Aquino on the delivery of the awarding of the top 18 cops in the country, he only said the "only request" to offer go was for the teachers.

But the Palace couldn't reward an activity since Aquino said President Aquino was scheduled to attend the awarding ceremony for teachers and policemen yesterday.

In an interview with reporters, Metacash Foundation Inc., president Nemesio Balaguer reportedly said that the foundation recently named its "heroes" as the outstanding young and well-known top policemen. "It's a heroic time," he said on the eve of the year.

Aquino's selection reportedly surprised the foundation to dole out the awards for the police, Balaguer said. "We want the men who do it."

Winning the war against poverty... one step at a time.

10 years, over 1 million dreams realized

Clean water for cooking. Light to do homework by. Capital to start a business and business. A tourism service run by the local community. These are just some of the hopes made real through funding from the Peace and Equity Foundation (PEF) Endowment Fund.

In 2001, PEF was set up to administer a P1.3 billion fund raised by the Caucus of Development NGO's (CODE-NGO). Since then, it has channelled P1.66 billion in income to 1,215 different projects run by NGO's, people's organizations and communities.

The money has fueled projects ranging from basic services like potable water and renewable energy in off-the-grid areas, livelihood and employment, relief assistance, social capital and microfinance.

The money has benefited over 322,236 households in the country's poorest communities, or over 1.3 million Filipinos.

Of the total fund, nearly 40% (around P400 million) went to Mindanao, bringing electricity, farm aid and health services, some of the basic prerequisites to peace in the region.

Today, the P1.3 billion endowment fund has grown to over P1.5 billion. In the coming years, imagine how many more projects it can fund, and how many more dreams it can make real.

MELAMINE MILK SCANDAL

7 Customs men in hot water

By Lito B. Salazar

THE DISSEMINATED PLAN investigation office (DIP) has recommended the investigation of seven Bureau of Customs officials in connection with the irregular importation of milk laced with melamine, an industrial chemical linked to the deaths of babies in China.

Almost two years after the melamine milk-related scandal, the DIP finally filed complaints of unlawful importation, violation of the anti-trust and unfair practices act, and violation of the Tariff and Customs Code of the Philippines against Customs Operations Officers Wilfredo Reyes, Almeda Nino, Doreen Ocasio, Nelson de Jesus, Paulo de la Cruz, Tito Galan and John Nicholas Arana.

They are also being administratively sanctioned for gross neglect of duty, gross misconduct, inefficiency and incompetence in the performance of official duties and conduct prejudicial to the best interest of the service.

Investigative recommendations that the Customs officials be suspended while the probe is ongoing.

Also charged were Phoenx Corp. directors Edmarinda Corrales, Ellen Corrales, Lucio Corrales Jr., Xilita Corrales and Larry Corrales; Import PRO Logistics Corp. broker Neil Nolasco, and the company's representative Ulisses Antonio.

Preliminary investigation

Phoenx Corp. had imported the Jolly Cow Brand High Calcium Low Fat Milk and Jolly Cow Brand High Calcium Low Fat Milk that were found to contain melamine. It was also discovered that the products did not have the required Certificate of Product Registration from the Bureau of Food and Drug.

The Office of the Distribution is expected to conduct a preliminary investigation based on the DIP complaint.

The DIP said the customs officials could be liable for allegedly allowing the products without checking whether or not the rules, orders and Bill of Lading for the Consignments with products imported with the Certificate of Product Registration.

It said Phoenx had apparently presented the Certificate of Product Registration and import documents for another Jolly Cow product, the Three Frolics Milk, which did not have from the High Calcium Low Fat Milk. According to the DIP, the document processors, customs, principal customs officers and principal customs agents should have scrutinized the records, completeness and authenticity of the import entries.

Because of the customs officials' failure to do so, the two melamine-contaminated milk products were able to enter the country, the DIP said.

The DIP had disseminated by Dep. A.

2009, more than 27,000 babies of Jolly Cow Brand High Calcium Low Fat Milk had been distributed.

Unlabeled contaminated milk has been linked to the deaths of two children and the illness of thousands more, prompting a world-wide recall of China-made milk products.

China, embroiled by its scandal, imposed the death penalty on two businessmen held responsible for the melamine crisis.

AFP to host rights summit

By Dana Pascuogui

THE ARMED Forces of the Philippines plans to host its first human-rights summit in October, and will be inviting world activists, including national rights groups, according to Lt. Col. Jeremias Burgos, chief of the AFP public affairs office.

Burgos said the AFP will also publish a human rights handbook in October. He said the military's initiative came up as a response to civil society groups and even to Government on Human Rights Chair Gen. Romeo B. Manzano, a human rights advocate who is a human rights expert for the Department of Defense.

Burgos said the human rights group has accepted an invitation from the military to join in formulating the proposed AFP Human Rights Handbook.

Since assuming office in July, AFP Chief Gen. Ricardo David Jr. has stressed that respect for human rights would be among the thrusts of the military under the new Aquino administration.

The military under the previous Aquino administration was accused of committing very bad killings and disappearances of human activists.

Burgos said they are within the "field setting" of the human rights handbook, giving feedback from field officers and soldiers on their knowledge of human rights protection.

The draft of the book touches on allegations of human rights violations by soldiers and efforts to build trust between and protect human rights.

Local police stations get more funds

By Dora Z. Peralta

LOCAL POLICE stations will get additional funds for operating expenses starting this month, Interior Secretary Jesse Robredo announced yesterday.

Police stations in every city and municipality are supposed to get a monthly operating budget based on their manpower size, equivalent to P140 per policeman.

Robredo said starting September, the amount has been increased to P150 per policeman.

The long-term amount is determined by the local police chief for their station's operational expenses like office supplies, travel and gas allowances and other expenses.

Robredo, who served as Mayor of Cebu for 15 years, revealed that some police stations do not get the operating funds due them.

Monthly budget

In a news conference at the SEC head quarters, Robredo cited the case of a police station that received an operating budget of only P73,000 in July and P75,000 in August, and a monthly gas allowance of P1,000 despite having 100 policemen.

Some police stations only receive P1,000 monthly for operational expenses, he said.

These police stations only manage to keep their funds above water with subsidy from the office of the mayor.

Robredo said they were able to secure operational funds to give to the field units by going over every item of the Philippine National Police budget and realigning some of the allocations.

Money in the field

Robredo said it was important to put more money in the field "to ensure our capability to respond to our citizens."

He said their target is to further increase the monthly operating budget of local police stations to P1,500 per policeman by next month.

The operating budget comes from the PNP national headquarters and is distributed down the line from regional to provincial city and municipal police stations.

The regional and provincial police offices, however, keep a certain percentage of the money for its own administrative expenses before distributing the rest to field stations.

Robredo said he hopes to "shorten" the distribution from the PNP national office, sending funds directly to the provincial police offices to minimize the risk.

He added that he also hoped to further increase the budget to P1,500 per policeman as they continue assessing the PNP's current budget.

Full disclosure

Meanwhile the SEC has issued a new memorandum circular ordering all government and corporate entities to publicly disclose their financial annual budget, performance, and assets and financial transactions in conspicuous public places, newspapers and in their websites.

Robredo said full disclosure will not only make local officials more accountable but will also encourage residents to contribute to good governance since they are informed where public funds are spent.

"Full disclosure is not only for a local government unit... it's really a question of political will," he said.

"It's not only a question of efficiency but a question of trust. Full disclosure will only enter the mind of the constituency" to their local officials, he added.

The SEC secretary said transparency is mandated by the Local Government Code of 1991 and Republic Act 10394 or the Government Procurement Reform Act.

If the local government unit does not have a website, Robredo said, it could post its financial transactions on the website of the SEC regional office or on the website of the SEC's central office.

Background: The purpose of this study was to determine the prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety among a sample of young adults in the United States. The study also aimed to explore the relationship between self-reported depression and anxiety and various demographic and psychological factors.

Methods: A cross-sectional survey was conducted using a nationally representative sample of young adults (ages 18-25) in the United States. The survey included questions about self-reported depression and anxiety, as well as demographic information (age, gender, race, ethnicity, education, income) and psychological factors (stress, coping strategies, social support). The prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety was calculated, and the relationship between these conditions and the demographic and psychological factors was explored using logistic regression analysis.

Results: The prevalence of self-reported depression among the sample was 15.2%, and the prevalence of self-reported anxiety was 18.7%. The study found that self-reported depression and anxiety were significantly associated with several factors. Higher levels of stress, lower levels of social support, and lower levels of coping strategies were associated with higher prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety. Additionally, certain demographic factors, such as being a female, having a lower level of education, and having a lower income, were also associated with higher prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety.

Conclusions: The study highlights the importance of addressing self-reported depression and anxiety among young adults. It suggests that interventions aimed at reducing stress, improving social support, and enhancing coping strategies may be beneficial in reducing the prevalence of self-reported depression and anxiety. Further research is needed to explore the underlying mechanisms and to develop targeted interventions for this population.

PBA cancels HK plan session

By Benjie Muthanich

THE PBA board of governors has cancelled its third planning session that was scheduled to start today in Hong Kong to discuss its strategy and to meet with the league and coach officials to discuss the league's future.

PBA chair Benjie Muthanich said the board has decided to postpone the session, which was to be held in Hong Kong, until after the league's season ends in December.

The decision to cancel the session is being made because the league is currently in a financial crisis and the board is trying to find a way to survive.

"We don't want to give the impression that we're running away from our problems," Muthanich said. "We also want our members to know that we're not running away from our problems."

League commissioner Chino Salvador said the PBA board is "not in a position to hold a session planning session in Hong Kong."

Actress Chin-Chin Gutierrez loses home to fire the second time around

By Henry C. Caragol

THE TRAGEDY of actress Chin-Chin Gutierrez, located in the compound where her house was razed last year ago, was not by a fire but a tragic accident.

MPD's Forensic Side of the Quezon City Fire Department said Gutierrez was not around when the fire broke out at around 10:26 a.m. in her house at 1718, General St., Yonkay Hills, Lungsod ng Quezon City.

Side said some investigators are looking into faulty wiring as the possible cause of the fire.

The fire started at around 10:26 a.m. in the house of Gutierrez, one of the actress's helpers, was slightly hurt as the fire started.

Based on the statement of the actress' mother and neighbors, the fire started in the actress' bedroom in the second floor.

Angela Cruz, Gutierrez's manager, said the actress apologized for not being able to respond to phone calls and text inquiries regarding the fire since "it has been a sleepless, stressful and very long time."

Gutierrez attended an ecology workshop and was not aware of the fire until yesterday morning, Cruz's statement said.

Although all of Gutierrez's belongings were lost in the fire, most of the neighboring houses were affected, Cruz said, adding that the actress was awaiting the final report from authorities regarding the cause of the fire.

Gutierrez added the multi-millionaire actress was already hurt and that she experienced the experience of losing the residence in Manila from Manila.

HAZING DEATH

Raps filed vs 4 frat men

By Tito G. Santos

CHARGES were filed yesterday by the police against four of the 16 members of the Alpha Phi Omega (APO) fraternity believed to be involved in the hazing death of a 19-year-old University of Makati (UMak) student more than two weeks ago.

John Reynold Maric and Michael Paguian, both 19 years old; Ronald Wicatan, 18; and Ben Hernandez, 21, were charged with violating the anti-hazing law before the Makati Regional Trial Court.

The hazing was UMak students while Hernandez is a graduate of the university. The trial was recommended for the four who voluntarily gave themselves up to the police.

"Initially, I recommended the filing of charges against four of the five suspects who surrendered. The fifth suspect, a student, was referred to the Department of Social Welfare and Development," Assistant City Prosecutor Lady Tacanan told the Inquirer over the phone.

"The case against the APO members is expected to be called off on Thursday."

Santos added that the 11 other APO members who were charged before the

MJC earmarks P1.5B for hotel, resort business

By Owen C. Dumlao

THE MANILA Jockey Club group is breaking into the hotel and resort business by investing about P1.5 billion in two big projects—one at the Sta. Lucia business park at Sta. Cruz, Manila and the other at its new horse racing complex in Cavite, Cavite.

The investments will be made by Manila Jockey Club Inc. (MJC) through its subsidiary MJC Investment Corp. (MIC).

MJC, chief operating officer and executive vice president Alfonso Reyes II said in an interview that the group had earmarked about P1 billion for a 350-room world-class hotel in Manila and another P300 million for a 200-room resort hotel facility in Cavite. Both are Philippine Economic Zone Authority-regulated tourism zones.

Reyes said the group had been planning the project long before the housing-taking incident in Quince Grandstand and was

He said the group was expecting to hold the ground-breaking for the new hotel in Manila in the first quarter of next year. It will occupy less than 2,000 square meters of the about 1.8-hectare property of the MJC group in the area.

"While we are close to the center of Manila, we are also close to Alondra and the historical and cultural center of Manila. We are creating a quarter where there is little or no competition," Reyes said.

He said the new hotel would offer quality room accommodations for less than P100 a night.

In a statement, the group said MJC was now finalizing an agreement with a world-renowned hotel management company to run the hotel which would designed in order to the increasing demand of tourists for an upscale but affordable hotel in the area.

The hotel project is fully endorsed by the city government of Manila, the group said in the statement.

The tourism projects will be funded with a combination of equity and borrowings. While the group has not entered any partner for the projects, Reyes said getting a strategic investor could be a possibility.

The hotel project in Manila is also seen complementing the ongoing joint venture project of MJC with Jeda Land Inc. involving a residential and commercial complex, including a business process out-

Manila still competitive as investment location

By Abigail L. Ho

AMONG MARSHES' cities in Asia, Manila has emerged as one of the best value-for-money investment destinations due to its relatively low wage rates, liberalized economy and wealth of talent, according to a recent Asian External Trade Organization (AETO) survey.

The survey conducted in January included 29 major cities in Asia, including China's Shanghai and Shenzhen.

Based on the results, Manila's average minimum wage rate of $130 a month was more competitive than Shanghai's $241 and Shenzhen's $129 a month. These two cities had seen wages go up due to the increasing demand and growing competition for human resources.

Compared with other regions in China, where monthly salaries ranged from $117-$143, wages in Manila were still relatively low, especially

The owners, a husband and wife team of culinary experts, sagely shared the history of this little Kampungsung inspired house built in the early 1980s, purchased after the "Candle" or Rice crisis. Here, arguably the best Pumpung Restaurant in the region, the highlights of which was the lochan prepared in the soup. The house was tastefully decorated from various antiques sourced in the area including woodwork and artifacts from a nearby torn-down church. After what seemed to be a lunch with eternity, the itinerary was kept for later over as the group walked around the various buildings.

How I'm living with the Sex Education in the curriculum

By Haydee Cado
Contributor

UNUSUALLY NERVOUS for 12 years in the corporate world, I never realized that I had been into your story (I became a 24/7 mom to my daughters ages 13 and 8).

I have been with them every step of their independence and I am very proud of them. From diapers to potty and dresses, from bottled-in-toddlerhood to drink soft and water, from baby shoes to sandals, singing, from "Sesame Street," "Barney," "Blue's Clues" and "Walt Disney's Pinocchio," from Barbie to Hannah Montana, Victoria's Secret, Junior Baking, Junior Bookworm and Taylor Swift, from both my storybooks from Henry, Robinson Crusoe and Tom Sawyer, from nursery to preschool and even high school and college. How time flies!

It's hard to raise and protect our children, especially daughters—they are very fragile and naive, but now I can protect them from the outside world and bad people! How I wish I could be with them all day long.

One school year late 2008, I read and watched the news about Sex Education being part of their curriculum. I did not pay attention to it. I told myself, "no, it's too early for my girls to know that. Parents, teachers and the Department of Education were asking me whether or not children in primary school should be aware of it."

I admit that on those my daughters, especially my eldest, ask to know questions about things they see on TV and magazines, but I just tell them, "it's not your business to know, it's not your business to know."

My growing-up years were fun, we were inseparable in school and at home. We talked our bottoms

"What happened?" "Why are they doing that?" "Are they talking and talking?" "Are they married?" "Only married couples do that, right Mom?" "But you and Papa holding hands and kissing and exchanging I love you?" These are questions that preoccupy my children.

Yes, I always tell her that only married couples do that, not girl-boyfriend thing. I am telling this to protect her. I always remind myself that they should take care of themselves, that nobody should take advantage of them, especially boys.

And I am very thankful that in our country they know themselves as well (they are less old and less yellow-faced).

I came from a conservative family. I don't remember asking my mother about the birds and the bees. It's a good thing I have a sister and those brothers, but I also don't recall that we talked about it.

Our growing-up years were fun, we were inseparable in school and at home. We talked our bottoms together and exchanged ideas. From that my then things are started in the very time that we talk and joke about it.

Anyway, now it's my turn to study guide my children, with support from my dear husband over in Canada. He has three brothers and seven sisters.

The birds and the bees are no longer applicable, thanks to books, TV and phones and computers—sometimes these are blessings, other times no.

I was surprised that in early to late 2008, there were watching the male and female reproductive organs. And indeed my daughter is learning about them very well. She even had a higher grade studying the male reproductive organs, that the female. Female reproductive organs, the bird, is complicated and has many parts.

I was relieved that whether I like it or not, there will come when my daughters will ask me about sex education. I can no longer hold off asking them to.

The time is now, though I will feel it very early at their age, but, education should indeed start at home and the support group comes from their teachers.

So now, as we study her lessons together, I pray for guidance. I try not to discuss too many complicated issues. Follow my instinct too.

Though I admit I am still rather shy to pronounce words such as vagina, penis, I will myself, this is it. This is the moment. I have to be with them and teach them the right values. I should not panic! Take one step at a time as I join my daughters in their learning process.

I hope I am doing the right thing, respecting themselves, but they like

Classic Italian pieces find a home in 'Asian Modern'

'Moroso also produces some of the most unusual pieces from the world's most daring designers'

By Alex Y. Vargas

WHEN THE husband-and-wife team of Joseph Jr. and Stephanie (he uses Joseph), based in the heart of Italian style, Moroso, Inc., showed off several pieces in Manila in visiting Moroso's studios recently, the Italians noticed that not a few addresses shared similar design aesthetics.

Dubbed as the "Asian Modern," the minimalist, often Zen-like look of most homes in the Philippines today provides Moroso with an ideal canvas for its furniture pieces. It also currently denotes the firm's clients' decision to value Moroso pieces in their and private or the market.

"Moroso every Moroso piece has its story," said Joseph. "We started that many years ago, by classical pieces with lines that combined with modern, more daring, more pieces, which Moroso had seen."

A classic and classic piece like the large "World" sofa (which comes back in leather and fabric) is still a bestseller. But a growing number of clients are also becoming more open to adding a few avant-garde chairs like the "Linda Albert," "Globe" (which is made of high-grade plastic) and "Tropica," another avant-garde piece made of steel. His plant is seen on a red fabric. It was Philipino's chair of the year award in 2008.

The "Little More" is a square, if you will, of lighter sculptural sofa bed with "Vesta" and "Africa." The one displayed at the three-level Moroso showroom in the City Center in Pasig (ACC Building) Street, 208 Avenue corner Santa Rosa Road, call +632-7741-089 and +632-7741-2101 comes in dark gray wood.

"Filipinos are not yet that daring when it comes to colors," Stephanie added. "But they're getting there. They are as daring as they want because Moroso also produces some of the most unusual pieces from the world's most daring designers."

But she also noticed that Filipinos tend to spend more on public areas both in the living and dining rooms compared to their bedrooms.

"Since we have to entertain, that is quite understandable," she said. "There are the first two areas most frequently seen by other people."

"TO MEET" chairs in various colors

Wide range

Established in 1952, Moroso offers a wide range of classic as well as contemporary furniture pieces designed by the likes of Patricia Piccini, Tullio Pericoli, Rino Levi, Marcel Wanders and Marc Newson, among others.

Under the helm of her husband's Italian heritage, Moroso also supports the resurgence of vintage pieces from Europe in a modern, sophisticated, semi-modern piece like the "Shadow" (inspired on what the client wants, it comes in different colors, modern, from classic to bright "vintage" shades).

"They have this dying art in Europe of weaving fabrics," said Joseph. "Before the art completely disappeared, Patricia turned it into a factory where it encourages villagers to stay and preserve the craft, the art of weaving on fabrics, they can produce something with real beauty for Moroso."

The brand's custom built piece range was also a reason for why Moroso tends to display items, and instead tries to provide individuals with plenty of options to suit their particular lifestyles and budgets.

The "Vesta" and "Africa," for instance, can be seen for as much as ₱60,000, while a single stool like the "Tropica" costs ₱14,000. But Moroso also offers
